

NIXING THE LASERS

You approach a familiar-looking hallway and realize that you've definitely been here before (er, after? Whatever). You know you've got to disarm the grid of security lasers, but how? As you learned while turning this system on, the key seems to be the points where the lasers intersect. You try to remember the general structure of the grid, but things are a little different this time...

- Brad Pitt film
- Architectural hemisphere
- Homophone of a number
- Company with a one-letter NYSE symbol
- 90s video game console
- Gremlins character
- Gas station brand
- Word with the same vowel appearing twice in a row